"Mopping Up" in Progress

THE bitter 82-day battle for Okinawa came to an end yesterday with the announcement by Admiral Nimitz in a special communiqué that organised resistance had ended, and that American troops were "mopping up small remaining pockets."

Although the close of one of the bloodiest struggles of the Pacific campaign gives valuable air and naval bases only 325 miles south of the Japanese homeland, it is not likely to be followed by a swift all-out assault on Japan, writes Reuter's military correspondent.

Allied engineers are already transforming Okinawa into a powerful naval and air base, according to the Japanese. Ten airfields, capable of accommodating 1,000 planes, have been constructed.

The struggle to hold the island cost the Japanese 90,000 men, according to an official estimate.

While the final summing-up of American casualties on Okinawa has not yet been officially announced, the ratio of men killed appears to be about ten Japanese to one American, says a Reuter message from Guam. America lost 31 ships sunk and 54 damaged, and heading the list of Japanese ships sunk were the battleship Yamato, two escorting cruisers and three destroyers, with three other destroyers set on fire.

Lieutenant - General Doolittle, who commanded the 8th U.S. Air Force in Britain, disclosed yesterday that he is shortly leaving for the Pacific to carry out a double-pronged heavy bomber assault on Japan in co-operation with the 20th U.S. Air Force. "Japan is going to be easier to destroy through bombardment than Germany," Doolittle added.

He gave as the main reasons for Japan's vulnerability concentration of industry, inflammability of structures, lack of recuperative powers, and insufficient time in which to move industry underground.

Five units of the British Pacific Fleet, including an aircraft-carrier, were hit by Japanese "suicide" planes during their operations off Sakashima, it was disclosed.

The attacks were made over a two months' combat period in the Sakashima area. None of the ships was put out of action, and all were operating normally within a few hours.

In Burma, where Japanese opposition is weakening, 14th Army troops advanced further along the Mawchi road, main eastward escape route into the Shan Hills.

Guns on Labuan Island covered a new Australian lightning landing at Mempakul, on British North Borneo, which took the Japanese by surprise and was totally unopposed.

The pilots of these Japanese "Baka" bombs do not return. When the bomb is launched from an aircraft, the pilot guides it to its objective and throws it into a dive. The bomb explodes on contact. This one was found on an airfield on Okinawa.—(A.P. photo.)

DAIL DEBATES SUPPLIES AND PRICES

No Compensation for Irish War Losses

DURING the war 20 Irish ships were lost and with them 138 lives, but no compensation had been paid by any belligerent Government, Mr. Lemass stated in the Dail yesterday.

The Minister said also that storage and wastage added some 25s. a ton to the cost of turf sold in Dublin, and that the wheat subsidy amounted to £7 12s. per ton on Irish-grown and £3 8s. per ton on imported wheat.

When the debate was resumed on the estimate for the Department of Supplies Mr. M. CORRY (F.C.) said that there was no justification for bringing coal intended for Cork to Dublin, and bringing it to Cork by rail. The Cork-Lisbon route was shorter than the Dublin-Lisbon route, and boats on that run should be discharged in Cork.

Mr. W. DAVIN (Lab.) protested against making petrol available to C.I.E. to do haulier work that they had never done before, and refuse it to the private firms who had formerly done such work. He said that the huge sums for subsidies for turf production were amazing in view of the cost of production. Fuel Importers had paid £2 6s. per ton for turf produced by the County Councils, and yet paid only £1 8s. per ton for turf produced by private firms in the same areas.

Mr. Davin added that tens of thousands of tons of bad turf drought into Dublin would mean that many housewives would never look at turf again once coal became available. He said he had seen whole waggon loads condemned as unsaleable.

Mr. D. CAFFERKY (Farmers') asked the Minister to explain how it was that turf produced and transported to Dublin at a cost of 17s. a ton was sold in Dublin at £5 3s. 9d. a ton.

Mr. H. M. DOCKRELL (F.G.) said that if turf was going to compete with coal as an economic fuel it would have to be supplied to the people in a dry form. He said he deplored the lack of information generally in regard to shipping and former shipping routes.

Alderman R. CORISH (Labour) urged the Minister to try and control the price of Irish-grown fruit. There was absolutely no justification at present, he said, for charging 8d. or 9d. each for apples.

AUGMENTED LEGATIONS

Mr. LEMASS, replying to the debate, said that several deputies had referred to his introductory statement as being a gloomy one. He had not intended it to be gloomy. "I considered it necessary," he continued, "to counter-act the unfounded optimism which had been generated by misleading newspaper reports. My statement was a factual one. It may have appeared gloomy to persons engaged in wishful thinking, but I do not think it will have any depressing affect upon persons familiar with the facts of the situation. The present position has this one advantage over any that existed since the war's outbreak—it is reasonable to hope that the passage of time will bring an improvement, and not the reverse, as heretofore."

Reference had been made to the need for making efforts to have more supplies released in other countries, to our advantage. Deputy Morrissey had inquired as to the means employed in maintaining contact with Governments elsewhere in connection with supplies. The State maintained Legations in all the important supplying countries, and the staffs of these Legations had been augmented. To an extent which bore no relation to the practice in the past, when Government control of trade was less noticeable, the staffs were concerned almost daily in dealing with various Government Departments and agencies which were concerned with the release of supplies to this country. These Legation staffs might be further augmented with advantage, and, if the area of control over supplies was likely to be extended in other countries, or maintained for a long period, consideration might have to be given to the strengthening of the staffs of these Legations, to ensure that our interests would not be neglected when the release of additional supplies became possible.

A number of deputies had urged that the time had come for him or some other Ministers to go to Great Britain or the United States for the purpose of getting supplies. "The end of the war in Europe has changed the position to some extent," Mr. Lemass said. "There is, however, no reason to believe that the sending of a Minister abroad would improve supplies. There is, in fact, every reason to assume the contrary."

Referring to Irish shipping losses, Mr. Lemass said that during the war some 20 Irish ships were lost, and with them 138 lives. Of these vessels it was considered that the loss of four must be regarded as due to normal maritime risks. In the case of the other 16 it appeared beyond doubt that the loss was due to belligerent action.

Seventeen foreign ships bringing cargo to this country on charter were lost, the loss in all cases being either ascertained or assumed to be due to belligerent action.

Mr. Lemass said that compensation had not been paid by any belligerent Government, and that the big ships lost were the Irish Pine and the Irish Oak.

WHEAT SUBSIDY

Dealing with the effect of management charges and freight charges on the wheat subsidy, the Minister said that at the present time the total cost of the wheat used in the manufacture of flour was made up as follows:—300,000 tons of native wheat at £25 4s. per ton, equivalent to £7,560,000; 165,000 tons of imported wheat at £21 per ton, equivalent to £3,475,500. This made a total cost of £11,035,000. Against that the total cost to the State in subsidy was £2,840,000, leaving the cost of wheat to the millers at £8,195,500, an average cost of £17 12s. per ton. The subsidy provided by the State was, therefore, at the rate of £7 12s. per ton on Irish-grown wheat, to a total cost of £2,280,000, and £3 8s. on imported wheat, representing a total cost of £560,000.

Replying to Mr. Morrissey, who asked: "Why cannot we get more tea?" Mr. LEMASS said he could not answer that question, because he did not know the answer. In the years before the war we in this country purchased the bulk of our tea supplies on the British market. At the beginning of the war the British authorities requested that we should confine our purchases of tea in that way.

"It was in their interest," Mr. Lemass said, "that the purchases of tea should be combined for both countries. Competitions between us in other spheres had forced up prices to the detriment of both. We agreed to that arrangement. We respected the request which had been made to us by the British authorities, and delayed making arrangements for bulk purchases of tea for direct shipment until it became obvious that the tea deliveries from the United Kingdom to this country were being cut on a far more drastic scale than the supply to British consumers."

As to the future, Mr. Lemass said, he could assure the Dail that at the earliest opportunity at which it would become possible direct purchases in the country of origin would be resumed. An organisation of traders had already been established for that purpose.

Dealing with "black market" and profiteering cases, the Minister said that the decision in regard to whether a particular case came before the District Court or Special Criminal Court was solely a matter for the Attorney-General.

Until they could either increase the ration of petrol to hackney owners or give a basic allowance to private owners, he thought it would be unwise to allow hackneys to be used in connection with sporting events, the Minister stated.

Referring to turf production, Mr. LEMASS said he was very much concerned with the apparent fall in the output by private producers this year, and that this, no doubt, was due to the adverse weather conditions. In calculating the cost of turf in Dublin, deputies should remember that the cost of storage, and wastage involved, added something like 25/- per ton to the price. He said that the permanent post-war plan for turf development should be before the House next autumn.

Mr. LEMASS added that increased supplies of tractors, threshers and disc-harrows were coming in from the United Kingdom, as well as reapers, binders and tractor-ploughs from Canada.

The vote was agreed to.

Wehrmacht's Losses

The final total of German prisoners-of-war and disarmed military personnel on the Western Front at the end of the war was given by Allied Supreme Headquarters yesterday as 7,614,794. Of these, 4,109,000 were in prison camps when the Germans surrendered.

It is estimated that 1,400,000 Germans were killed or seriously wounded on the Western Front.—(A.P.).

REDUCTION IN VOTE FOR ARMY

MR. OSCAR TRAYNOR, Minister for Defence, yesterday in the Dáil moved a vote of £5,467,047 for the Army. He said that when the estimate was being prepared last November it was made on the assumption that the war would continue, and the figure was £8,411,942. The present estimate was based on an estimated reduction in the strength of the Army to 12,500 by March, 1946.

Referring to the plans for demobilisation, the Minister said there was no intention of throwing a large body of men at any one time on the labour market. Demobilisation would be effected over 13 or 14 months.

Provision had been made for the maintenance of the L.D.F., the estimated cost of which is £256,435. The form which both the reserve and the L.D.F. would take in the post-emergency period was still undecided. It had been decided to retain the A.R.P. services, and the cost for the present year would be £93,885. About £50,000 of this represented outstanding liabilities and £25,000 for the removal of air raid shelters.

Dr. T. O'HIGGINS (F.G.) said that the Minister's attitude was definitely an indication of irresponsibility. One would expect from the Minister, facing the post-war period, some hint of the post-war military policy that they were to pursue. The Minister should face up to the fact that the defence of three-quarters of an island by a land force alone was absurd. If the country was going to have any kind of defence in the future, it would have to be based on the defence of the seas around it and the sky above it.

The Unemployment Insurance Bill, the text of which was issued yesterday, proposes to qualify certain members of the Defence Forces and Construction Corps, for the receipt of unemployment benefit on their return to civil life.

German General Staff To Be Broken Up

NAZIS NOT YET DOWN AND OUT: Montgomery

[Reuter and A.P.]

"GERMANY IS NOT DOWN AND OUT—SHE IS ONLY ON HER KNEES. THE NEXT TWO OR THREE MONTHS ARE GOING TO BE THE TESTING PERIOD IN WHICH WE WILL SEE WHICH WAY THE CAT IS GOING TO JUMP," FIELD-MARSHAL MONTGOMERY SAID YESTERDAY AT 21st ARMY GROUP HEADQUARTERS.

The Allies, he said, would have to keep a close watch in the immediate future on the million of trained German soldiers who would soon be demobilised in Germany.

Montgomery indicated that German S.S. troops are likely to be kept in prison camps for 20 years. The members of the German General Staff will be taken out of Germany and isolated in small colonies to prevent them from hatching plots. They will be kept in prison communities for an indefinite time.

Nazi plans for a third attempt at world conquest were disclosed yesterday in Washington.

Field-Marshal Montgomery said that British troops would leave in the near future to occupy the British sector of Berlin. The occupant forces would be the 7th Armoured Division (the "Desert Rats").

British military government in Germany would gradually be superseded by the British civilian government of the Control Commission. The process would be slow, but a change-over was essential, as a military government was unable to deal with such matters as Germany's financial system, the settlement of her national debt and the restoration of local and national taxation.

He did not regard fraternisation as a major problem, and it was reasonable to predict that the ban would be removed as soon as it was clear that the German people, especially the demobilised soldiers, did not mean to try any subversive activity.

"The female auxiliaries of the Wehrmacht need watching, however," Montgomery said. "They seem to be red-hot anti-British."

WINTER FAMINE

Montgomery agreed that there would be a famine in Germany this winter, but he was determined to do everything possible to mitigate starvation.

To make up the four million tons of food required for the Ruhr, and formerly imported from the zone now occupied by Russia, one and a half million tons of wheat, or its equivalent, would be taken to the Ruhr.

It was hoped to give every German in the British zone 2,000 calories of food daily—half the ration of a British soldier.

"VICIOUS PLANS"

Secret German documents revealing a Nazi plot to "hide" in strategic industries, while planning a third world war, are in the hands of the U.S. Military Affairs Committee, Senator Kilgore declared in Washington yesterday.

"Masquerading as neutral business men without political allegiance, German cartelists have already conceived vicious plans for a third attempt at world conquest," he said.

"After the defeat of Germany the Nazi Party recognised that certain of its best known leaders would be condemned as war criminals. In co-operation with industries it is arranging to place its less conspicuous, but most important, members in positions with various German factories as technical experts, or members of research and designing offices.

"As soon as the party becomes strong enough to re-establish its control over Germany the industrialists will be rewarded for their effort and co-operation."

A high-ranking spokesman at Allied Supreme Headquarters in Paris said yesterday that the Germans had not yet realised what a catastrophe had overtaken their country, and the real test of their reaction to defeat would come with the winter, when fuel and food shortages, bad weather and inadequate housing brought home their full plight.

Hitler Cancelled Invasion Plans

Colonel-General Jodl, Chief of the German General Staff, has told Allied intelligence officers that Germany lacked sufficient amphibious landing craft to put ashore the ten divisions the High Command believed essential for the invasion of Britain, states a message from Allied Supreme Headquarters in Paris.

When it was obvious that Britain intended to keep on fighting the invasion orders went out on July 2nd, 1940, but were cancelled on October 6th, because Germany could not win air superiority. Germany did not want Italy in the war, but she could not restrain Mussolini from stabbing France in the back. Germany had long sought Britain as an ally, but was forced to turn to Italy when overtures to Britain failed.

The High Command hoped by completing the occupation of France and reaching the Channel to frighten Britain out of the war.

The North African landings came as a complete surprise to the Germans.

Jodl warned Hitler that the Russians were building up forces along the frontier, and Hitler feared that if he did not fight Russia he would be faced with Russian demands for entry into Bulgaria through Rumania. The High Command planned the attack on Russia, but the responsibility was solely Hitlers.

Jodl said the High Command guessed the force and place of the Allied invasion, but expected it earlier. The Allied bombing of communications made it impossible to supply the German armies on a scale adequate to hurl the invasion back to the sea. The Ardennes offensive was a last gamble, and it was dependent on capturing petrol. He knew the offensive had failed on the third day, but kept fighting to gain time.—(Reuter.)

SENTENCES ON POLES

Okulicki Given Ten Years

SENTENCES were passed in Moscow yesterday on twelve of the fifteen Poles accused of sabotage in the rear of the Red Army.

The sentences, which did not mention imprisonment, but "deprivation of freedom," varied between ten years and four months. Three of the Poles were acquitted. A sixteenth has still to be tried.

The sentences, from which there is no appeal, were:—

General Okulicki, C.-in-C., Polish Home Army, ten years;

Jan Jankowsky, Vice-Premier in Poland of the London Polish Government, eight years;

Adam Bes, Vice-President of the Council of Ministers in Poland, and Stanislaw Jasukowitch, a member of the Council, five years.

Pazak, President of the "Parliament" called the "Council of National Unity," 18 months;

Baginski, Vice-President of that Council, and one of Mr. Eden's candidates for a new Polish Government, one year;

Werzinski, Chairman of the Peasant Party, and second Vice-President of the "Council of National Unity," eight months;

Czarnowski (Democrat), six months;

Merzs, Secretary of the Peasant Party in Cracow; Stypulkowski, member of the Peasant Party Presidium, and the only prisoner to plead not guilty; Franz Urbanik, another of Mr. Eden's candidates, and Josep Hackinski, Labour Party Chairman—four months each.

Acquitted were Josep Stemler Dombski, Deputy Chief of the Information Bureau of the Council of Ministers; Kobiljanski, member of the National Democratic Party, and Mihalowski.

In passing their verdict, the Court said that Okulicki had received from the London Polish Government a number of coded radio telegrams requesting him to maintain the "Home Army" after the liberation.

The Court's statement said that, in December, 1944, Okulicki was informed of a decree drafted by the emigré Government proposing to turn the Home Army into an illegal organisation, and to conceal its material and man-power resources.

"Carrying out these instructions, and with the purpose of deceiving the Soviet Command in the field, Okulicki issued an order for the fictitious demobilisation of the Home Army, while maintaining the basic cadres and concealing arms, ammunition and radio transmitters."

It alleged that the main task of the organisation was to recruit cadres and accumulate arms and equipment for the preparation of an uprising against Soviet Russia.

The defence speech of Okulicki was reported yesterday. He pleaded guilty to most of the charges.

Jankowsky said:—

"We made a mistake in lacking confidence in the Soviet Union. There is no enmity to the Soviet Union in Poland—only mistrust. If that mistrust is dispersed, it will be replaced by true friendship."

Ben said: "Co-operation with the Soviet Union is possible. We have already begun to talk the same language."

The radio equipment and other illicit equipment seized from the accused will be confiscated.

All Political Prisoners in Eire Released

THE last of the political internees in Eire have been released. At one time there were approximately 450 men, all belonging to the I.R.A., in various internment camps and prisons, as well as a large number who were sent to prison by the Special Criminal Court.

Imprisoned men whose sentences have not run out include Stephen Hayes, former Chief of Staff of the I.R.A., who gave himself up to the police in June, 1941. A year before that he had been captured by former associates, and when he gave himself up in a suburban station he was carrying a revolver and wearing the remains of chains and ropes with which he had been bound. He was sentenced to five years' imprisonment on June 19th, 1942.

In the Dail in July, 1943, Mr. Boland, Minister for Justice, during a debate on a hunger-strike being carried on by three internees, said that some of the internees "could not be released because of the terror they are able to inspire." "Because of the terror they are able to inspire," added the Minister, "we cannot try them," and he said also that people had been shot at after giving evidence against political prisoners.

THANKSGIVING DAY

No Publication of the "Irish Times."

The "Irish Times," in common with other Dublin and Cork newspapers, will not be published on Thanksgiving Day, June 29th.

The Advertisement Department at 31 Westmoreland street will be open from 9 a.m. until midnight.

President Will Drive in State Through Dublin

When Mr. Sean T. O'Kelly is installed as President on Monday next, he will drive in state from Dublin Castle to Arus an Uachtarain in an open landau, drawn by four horses, with liveried coachmen and an escort of cavalry. Horses, carriage and the silver harness have been kindly lent by Mr. Richard Collen, of Dublin.

It seems that traditional ceremonial requires four horses for such a great occasion. The four horses are sent daily to a military barracks to become accustomed to the movements of the troops and the noise of military bands.

The coach is being painted and decorated in one of the garages of Coras Iompair Eireann. The general colour scheme is dark blue with gold lines.

Vehicular traffic in certain streets will be suspended from 12.50 p.m. on Monday. The streets include Cork Hill, Dame street, Westmoreland street, O'Connell street, Parnell square, North Frederick street, Berkeley road, North Circular road, to Phœnix Park Gate. From 1.25 roads in the Phœnix Park via the Gough Monument will be closed. Tram services between Nelson Pillar and Nassau street will be suspended from 12.40 p.m. The period of suspension of traffic will be approximately twenty minutes.

Teachers' Claims Supported by Church of Ireland

The Archbishops and Bishops of the Church of Ireland, at their meeting on Tuesday last, considered carefully the claims of the national school teachers. The position was regarded as most serious in relation to the happiness and well-being of those concerned. Moreover, stress was laid upon the detrimental effect of anxiety of mind upon the efficiency of the teaching given. The danger of many teachers seeking adequate remuneration elsewhere was noted in relation to its effect upon the staffing of the schools. The meeting was conscious of the difficulties of the situation from the State point of view. Nevertheless, an urgent appeal has been forwarded to the Ministry of Education from this meeting asking that extra grants be paid exceptionally to the teachers, adequate to meet the need and worthy of the profession involved.

Double Day's Pay on Thanksgiving Day

Any ships entering the Port of Dublin on Thanksgiving Day (June 29th) will be serviced, and the men concerned will receive a double day's pay. This was decided at yesterday's meeting of the Dublin Port and Docks Board, when Mr. J. Larkin, senior, protested that a resolution, proposed by him and adopted at Wednesday's committee meeting, was not on the agenda.

The resolution dealt with the granting of a holiday at the Dublin Port on June 29th next. The Chairman, Mr. T. O'Connor, said that the ordinary employees would be given a day's holiday with pay.

New Stage in Belgian Crisis

The Belgian political crisis over the return of King Leopold yesterday reached a new stage, as it was learned from authoritative sources, says Reuter, that the leaders of the Catholic Conservative Party have decided to form a new Government to function under the King.

According to an A.P. cable from Brussels, Socialist and Communist unions' delegates, at a meeting in Brussels yesterday, decided that a general strike will break out, not only as soon as the King steps on Belgian soil, but even as soon as he makes use of his royal prerogatives—for instance, by forming a Government.

Prince Charles, Regent of Belgium, yesterday received the British and American Ambassadors.

D-Day Paratrooper Faces Court-martial In Dublin

A BRITISH paratrooper, Patrick Mortimer (22), Stanaway road, Kimmage, Dublin, told members of a Court Martial at Portobello Barracks, Dublin, yesterday, that he deserted from the Irish Army because he could not help his mother to maintain the large family at home.

Mortimer, who appeared in Irish Army uniform, left his battalion in July, 1943, and was apprehended at Dun Laoghaire on June 6th, 1945. He was among the first paratroopers dropped on D-Day in Normandy.

The Court consisted of Commandant J. Dolan, Captain J. Sherry and Lieutenant J. Worn. Commandant F. J. Tully was Judge-Advocate and Lieutenant T. O'Shea prosecuted.

Captain Peadar Cowan, solicitor, who defended, said he hoped that, as the result of the publicity given to these cases, instructions would be given to the Military Police to desist from arresting these men.

Cpl. P. Larkin, Military Police, said he got Mortimer's name from the large register of deserters.

Captain Cowan—That is a fairly big book?—Yes.

Captain Cowan—Would I be right in saying it contains thousands of names?

Judge-Advocate—I cannot allow the witness to give secondary evidence of what is in the book.

Cpl. Larkin produced documents which showed that Mortimer served in the British Army.

Captain Cowan—Are you assisted by the boat authorities in your efforts to find deserters by inspecting the roll of passengers?—Yes.

How long have you been at that duty?—Over three years.

In that time you have apprehended hundreds?—Yes.

And I suppose if you were to arrest all of them who come back, you would have a full-time job for a number of years?—I would.

Mortimer, giving evidence, said he was 22 years of age, the eldest of a family of eight children. His father received an allotment of 14s. a week. Captain Cowan, pleading for leniency, said that for desertion on active service a man was liable to the death penalty, and desertions when not under active service conditions could carry penal servitude. In the past five years they had the unfortunate position that probably thousands of soldiers deserted; went to England and joined the Army, the Navy, or the Royal Air Force. Courts-martial had tried hundreds of these cases during the emergency. "I appeared in scores of them," Captain Cowan said, "and all were similar to the case before the Court to-day. Many of them were worse, because they related to married men not in receipt of marriage allowances who were left to endeavour to keep their wives and small families on 13s. or 14s. a week. The families of these men—men wearing their country's uniform and prepared to fight and die for their country—had to resort, like paupers, to charitable organisations and public boards of assistance to try to get the price of shillings to put food into the mouths of their children.

"Notwithstanding the heavy penalties for desertion, these men took the risk of leaving the country," Captain Cowan said, "and joining the armed forces of Britain, in order to feed the people to whom they had a moral obligation."

Captain Cowan said that queries and questions raised in Parliament by public-spirited citizens as to the numbers of absentees were not answered. These citizens, alarmed by the desertions, were anxious to get some particulars, with a view to seeing if some steps could be taken to remove the causes.

Captain Cowan appealed to the Court to impose no sentence, but discharge from the Army. He said that in a recent Court-martial in Dublin two men similarly charged had been sentenced. The sentence had been commuted by a Confirming Officer to discharge. The Court had sat on a Tuesday, and by Thursday evening the men had been free.

The Judge-Advocate said that desertion was a grave departure from that sense of loyalty which was a fundamental characteristic of a good soldier.

The finding of the Court will be promulgated.

Churchill Warns British Electors

Mr. Churchill, broadcasting last night, stated that the violent imposition of a Socialistic system would rob the ordinary wage earner of his personal freedom to an extent unknown, and that in a Socialist State the worker would be deprived of his rights of collective bargaining largely promoted by the Conservative Party, including the right to strike and of appeal to his trade union, all of which ran counter to Socialist doctrine.

In a reference to the Attlee-Laski controversy, the Prime Minister said that his conception of enjoying Mr. Attlee's counsel at the coming "Big Three" talks in Berlin, and his belief that the Labour leader would stand by whatever he said at the discussions, had been complicated and darkened by the repeated interventions of Professor Laski—a new figure who had "leapt into notoriety."

"Now it seemed," said Mr. Churchill, "that we must be governed by unrepresentative persons, who will share the secrets and give orders to so-called responsible Ministers of the Crown. I confidently believe that the British democracy . . . will ward-off these dangers and make their way steadfastly towards something that can justly be called 'a fit home' in the land of hope and glory.

DISPOSAL OF ARMY LORRIES

At Question Time in the Dail yesterday, Mr. OSCAR TRAYNOR, Minister for Defence, told Mr. D. Heskin (C. na T.) that it had been decided, in the public interest, to give Coras Iompair Eireann the option of purchasing lorries which were at present surplus to Army requirements, and which would be suitable for the company's purpose. The lorries which might not be found suitable to the requirements of the company would be sold singly by public auction.

Mr. DILLON—Isn't it a revolutionary practice to dispose of Government property without either tenders or by public auction?

Mr. TRAYNOR—Coras Iompair Eireann is a national transport organisation, for which the Government must see that proper facilities are provided. Lorries are difficult to secure at the moment.

Mr. DILLON—Is the Minister aware that the Department of Finance regulations in existence definitely prohibit the course of conduct he proposes? It is a complete departure from Department of Finance practice. Will the Minister consult his colleague, the Minister for Finance?

Mr. TRAYNOR—I will.

Mr. J. M. DILLON (Ind.) said he wanted to inquire if the Government proposes to provide time wherein to make a statement on the protocol for the inauguration of the President. He asked: Are we to turn up in any kind of clothes we like—kilts, bawneens, saffron tweed suits, short stockbrokers' black jackets and striped trousers, morning coats and bowler hats?

Mr. MacENTEE—The deputy can turn up in whatever he prefers.

Mr. L. J. WALSH (F.F.)—Is there any objection to the deputy appearing with the Union Jack wrapped round him?

Australian Premiership. — Many Australian Socialists think that Mr. John Curtin, Commonwealth Labour Prime Minister, who is suffering from congestion of the lungs, will . . . annual . . . esume office.

Yugo-Slavia's War Criminal List

Hundreds of thousands of individual criminal acts have been investigated, more than 10,000 final reports on Fascist crimes have been prepared, and between 200 and 300 names are being added monthly to the register of war criminals by the Yugo-Slav State Commission for the investigation of crimes committed by the German and Italian invaders of Yugo-Slavia.

These figures are given in a report issued last night by Dr. Radornir Zivkovic, Yugo-Slav representative of the United Nations' War Crimes Commission.

Guiseppe Bastianini, Italian Ambassador to the Court of St. James's from September, 1939, to June, 1940, stands high on the list, accused of being directly responsible for precise orders for the shooting of hostages and other civilians without trial.

The statement adds: "The crimes committed in Yugo-Slavia, particularly by the German and Italian invaders, but also by their Hungarian and Bulgarian assistants, reach almost unbelievable dimensions in mere numbers of persons killed or the extent of territory and property wantonly destroyed."

Unofficial Strike of Railway Workers

Time-keepers and shop clerks of Coras Iompair Eireann at railway works, Inchicore, came out on an unofficial strike yesterday evening. The men, who are demanding higher wages and better conditions, struck when no agreement could be reached between their representatives and the company's.

The Minister for Industry and Commerce was interviewed yesterday, but it is believed that the results were not satisfactory. Negotiations between the unions and the employers have been in progress for three years.

Agreement Reached on World Charter

Shortly before sunrise yesterday the U.N.C.I.O. Co-ordination Committee completed the draft agreed upon by 50 nations for a new League of Nations. Nothing is left for the leaders of the United Nations to do except complete the translation of the charter into the five chief languages of the world, followed by the formal approval and signature.

Working on the foundations laid at Dumbarton Oaks and Yalta, the United Nations have completed a system of collective security and mutual assistance against aggression, which goes further than the old League of Nations.

The nations, in eight weeks, have set up an International Security Council to take immediate measures to avert war in its earliest stages. A "World Parliament," where the nations of the world, large and small, can speak to the world, and an Economic and Social Council, which, for the first time in history, provides permanent international machinery for the prevention of economic conditions likely to lead to war.

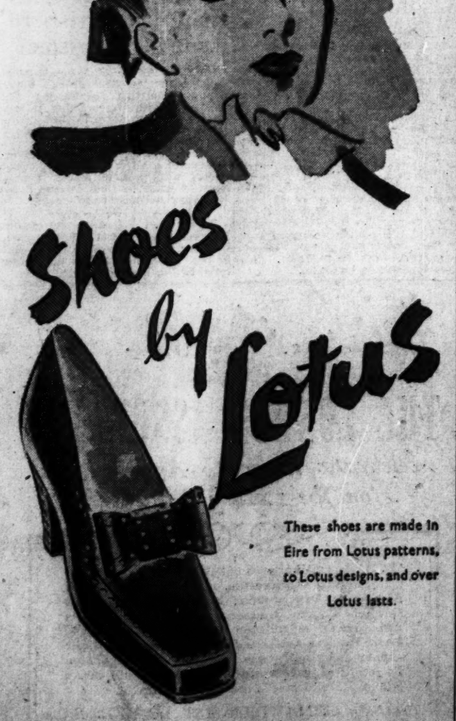

The Spanish Foreign Ministry issued a communiqué last night denying allegations against the Franco régime in the proposal at San Francisco by "one of the Mexican delegates" that "Governments created with the help of the Axis should be excluded from a world peace organisation."

Dublin Victuallers To Close Shops

All victuallers' shops in Dublin city and county and Bray areas will be closed from next Wednesday.

Members of the Dublin Master Victuallers' Association were informed last Wednesday by the Workers' Union of Ireland that labour will be withdrawn from their establishments on Saturday night should they not comply with the Union's demands for a fortnight's holidays with pay.

At a meeting of the Association last night, it was decided that unless the Union withdrew its demand, the shops would be closed.

These shoes are made in Eire from Lotus patterns, to Lotus designs, and over Lotus lasts.

STOMACH SUFFERER

Feeling Like A New Man

Dear Sirs, Leeds, 26th March, 1945.

I felt that I must write to you and let you know of the wonderful results I have obtained through Macleans Powder....

I was discharged from the forces in July 1944, suffering from stomach trouble..... and until taking your powder I was more or less in ill-health caused by the discomfort and pain from my complaint... I decided to slip out to a nearby chemist.... The only thing he had in stock was "Macleans" and I am afraid that I had little hope that it would alleviate the pain and discomfort. However not only did it do this, but at the same time got rid of all flatulence and acted as a mild laxative. Since that day I can honestly say that I have had no pain whatsoever, and am feeling like a new man again.... Yours faithfully, (Signed) D. M.

The wide popularity of Maclean Brand Stomach Powder is convincing evidence of its efficacy in relieving Heartburn, Flatulence, Nausea and Stomach Pains due to Indigestion, and in safeguarding against Gastritis and Stomach Ulcer.

Maclean Brand Stomach Powder and Tablets are only genuine if signed "ALEX. C. MACLEAN"

DEAD-HEAT AT THE DUNDALK MEETING

BY far the most exciting race at Dundalk yesterday was the Corinthian Plate, confined to amateur riders and to horses that had not won more than £500 in stakes. With half a mile to go, the favourite, Golden Prince, who had made all the early running, was swinging along in front of Jack Tatters, with Subtle Serpent, who had made up considerable ground, third, and Sweet Haven, moving very easily just behind him. Turning for home, Subtle Serpent began to make his way forward on the outside, and soon afterwards he headed Golden Prince. The latter had had enough, but Jack Tatters, beautifully handled by Mr. Sleator, clung to him doggedly. Near the post Subtle Serpent's head was still in front, but Jack Tatters ran his race out game as a pebble, and, in the last few strides, forced a dead-heat. Subtle Serpent was giving 15lb. to Jack Tatters, who had only run once before, and who is owned by Mr. W. E. Wylie, one of the eleven members of the newly-formed racing board. Jack Tatters, a grandly-made gelding, seems certain to develop into a fine 'chaser, for he is by Jackdaw of Rheims from a mare by Tag Rag.

The Balfestown trainer, C. A. Rogers, had a very successful afternoon. He saddled three winners, and two of them, Free Trade and William the Conqueror, both owned by himself, were ridden by Dan Moore. Long odds were laid on Free Trade in the valuable novices' hurdle race. He allowed Northern Dandy to gallop alongside him until landing over the last hurdle, and then he raced clean away to win just as he liked by five lengths. William the Conqueror, making his first appearance over fences, produced far too much speed on the flat for Cottagemore in the novices' 'chase, while Housewarmer, Rogers's third winner, took the lead at half-way in the handicap 'chase, and stayed on stoutly to stave off determined challenges from Drumbilla and Colehill.

Racing Bodies Lift Ban

THE Stewards of the Jockey Club and of the N.H. Committee have withdrawn the notice issued on June 12th, 1941, restricting the running of horses which have been in training or located outside Great Britain.

This means that Irish horses can now run in England.

Since the restrictions were imposed and the subsequent curtailment of racing in England a number of horses, particularly National Hunt performers, were sent to Ireland. These now may return to England for the winter sport.

Entertaining Tennis In East Of Ireland Tests

J. C. DAVIS, a promising junior of a couple of seasons ago, sprang a surprise in the East of Ireland championships at Lansdowne Club yesterday in beating F. W. Peard, 4-6, 6-3, 10-8, in the men's singles. With both men moving in at every opportunity, it was a most exciting match to watch, and Davis saved a match point and lost five before finally clinching the issue.

Miss M. Nichols had a hard battle against Miss B. Good in the women's singles, in which both showed considerable power of stroke off the ground; but Miss Good's tendency to net the return of service told against her in the end.

THRILLS IN SCHOOLS' CRICKET FINAL

St. Mary's College .... 72 (for 7)
Blackrock College 60

IN a match full of thrills at Rathmines yesterday, St. Mary's College, beat Blackrock College by three wickets in the Junior Cricket Cup final, thus winning the cup for the first time.

With a score of 60 runs all out, Blackrock looked certain winners when St. Mary's lost five wickets for 10 runs, and then 6 for 20. Then G. Duffy, St. Mary's sixth man, steadied up with some careful batting, and, with D. O'Sullivan, brought the score to 58, when the latter was caught. A four soon afterwards from Duffy won the game. Duffy made 32, not out, and O'Sullivan 25.

M. Doyle (2 for 13) and D. Pigot (5 for 32) bowled extremely well for Blackrock, who might have won if their fielding had been better.

EIRE GOLFERS MUST JOIN P.G.A.

MR. ROBERT MacKENZIE, Chairman of the Professional Golfers' Association, stated yesterday that professional golfers—regardless of their nationality—who are not members of the P.G.A., are not eligible to compete in tournaments run under the auspices of the P.G.A. Professionals from Eire, or any other country, are entitled to become foreign members of the P.G.A.; and, as such, can compete in these tournaments.

Car Production Goes Ahead

By Harold C. Brown

THE British Board of Trade and Ministry of Supply have authorised the production in the next twelve months of 200,000 motor cars; 100,000 of these will be reserved for export, and it is more than likely that Ireland will get a share of them.

Before the war, Eire imported annually over £1,000,000 worth of British motor vehicles, parts and accessories; she was Britain's best customer, apart from Australia and New Zealand, which took more than 50 per cent. of Britain's new cars, and her proportion of 7.2 per cent. was not bad for a small country. We are Britain's nearest customer, and we have the money to buy the cars—that is to say, the country has; I haven't. It is the policy of the British Government to foster exports, and here is a market close at hand.

Britain's peak year of production was 1937, when the motor industry turned out over half a million vehicles, including 389,633 cars. The industry did not manufacture 200,000 cars in a year till 1933, so that the target which the manufacturers have set themselves for the next twelve months is high, particularly high in view of the change-over from war to peace production, and the shortages of labour and material.

Austins, Morrises and Standards are either in production or going into production at once. It is expected, however, that only 20 per cent. of the industry's twelve months' objective will be reached before December next.

As an example of prices, the Austin Eight saloon will cost £255 (plus £71 purchase tax in England) and the Ten saloon will cost £310 (plus £87). How much similar vehicles will cost here depends upon the Government and the tariffs they impose—the absence of the purchase tax may leave us no better off than the British motorist in the end.

Signs of the re-awakening of motoring are to be found in my increasing correspondence on the subject. This week I had to settle an argument at an Overseas R.A.F. station as to Ulster Grand Prix speeds and records. Serafini (Gilera) holds the race record at 97.85 m.p.h. and the lap record at 100.03 m.p.h., both made in the 1939 race. Rusk (A.J.S.) was the first, however, to lap at 100 m.p.h. The fastest lap in first-class motorcycle racing was Meier's 100.83 m.p.h. on a B.M.W. in the 1939 Swedish Grand Prix.

Other signs of the times are that the Leinster Clubman has re-appeared and that the Ards Clubman is at last being printed with visible ink. Furthermore, the magazines of the motor trade houses are being revived. It looks like being a grand world again!

RAGLAN ROAD SHOOTING CASE SENTENCES

At the trial in the Circuit Criminal Court, Dublin, yesterday, of Owen Maginn (21), student, Rathgar road, and Donal O'Brien, radio officer, Hume street, Dublin, who were charged with wounding Dr. Magner at Raglan road on May 7th last, with conspiracy and with carrying firearms without a certificate, the jury, after two-and-a-half hours' absence, found both men guilty of conspiracy to assault Dr. Raymond Magner and of being in possession of firearms without a certificate. They were found not guilty of conspiracy to shoot or of shooting at Dr. Magner.

A suspensory sentence of 15 months' imprisonment was passed on Maginn, and a suspensory sentence of seven months on O'Brien.

In summing up, Judge McCarthy warned people against carrying firearms, and said that no evidence had been given which would in law have justified the accused men to use arms.

Supreme Court Says Wife Must Pay as Agreed

The Supreme Court yesterday answered "No" to a question in a case stated by Mr. Justice Haugh, whether it was contrary to public policy to enforce the payment of £120 by Mrs. Maureen Gore Ormsby to her husband, Arthur Gore Ormsby, The Grove, Balrath, Navan, due under a covenant in a separation deed that she should pay him £5 a week.

It had been stated that differences having arisen between Mr. and Mrs. Ormsby they entered into a separation deed by which Mrs. Ormsby agreed to pay her husband £5 a week, but that there was no chastity clause in the deed. The husband, it was further stated, had, after the execution of the deed, committed adultery with a woman, by whom he had a child, and Mrs. Ormsby submitted that she was not bound to pay the £5 a week because of the adultery of her husband.

Mr. J. A. Costello, S.C., who, with Mr. A. D. Pringle, S.C., and Mr. E. C. Micks (instructed by Messrs. Beauchamp and Orr), appeared for Mr. Ormsby, now said that Mrs. Ormsby was asking the Court to do something which it had been in her own power to do when the deed had been entered into, and which, by design, inadvertence or neglect, she had omitted to do. A chastity clause had not been put in the deed, and it now was suggested that the Court should import a chastity clause into it, in an effort, presumably, to get rid of it in its entirety.

The Chief Justice, giving judgment, said that he was quite unable to say that the arguments on behalf of Mrs. Ormsby had satisfied him that Article 41 of the Constitution must be read as abrogating what unquestionably had been the law before the date of the Constitution, and he was not prepared to hold that public policy required the Court to put such interpretation on the Article. For that reason he was of opinion that the answer to the question asked in the case stated must be "No."

Mr. Justice Murnaghan, Mr. Justice Geoghegan and Mr. Justice O'Byrne agreed.

Mr. Justice Black, who also agreed, said that Mrs. Ormsby, who was paying this money under the deed, had made perhaps a bad bargain in not having had the foresight to have a chastity clause put into it, and he was afraid that he should have regarded the husband's case as wholly unsustainable had there been no authority to support it.

Three Dead Infants Found in Dublin

On Tuesday last the bodies of three unidentified, newly-born male infants were found in Dublin—one was taken from the Liffey; one was found in a parcel in St. John's lane, off Thomas street, and the third was found under a seat in a café in Lower O'Connell street. Two of the infants had been dead for about three days; the other had been in the Liffey for about six weeks. There were no marks of violence on the bodies.

At an inquest in the City Morgue yesterday, Dr. D. A. MacErlean, City Coroner, returned a verdict of death due to inattention after birth.

MEATH DIVORCE CASE

On the findings of a jury, Mr. Justice Haugh, in the High Court yesterday, refused a petition of Mrs. Margaret Moran, Ardsallagh, Navan, for divorce from her husband, Thomas, builder's foreman, Nicholastown, Kilcullen, and formerly of Ardsallagh, Navan. The jury found that the husband had not been guilty of cruelty, as his wife alleged, and, on his counter-claim, found that his wife had committed adultery in 1944, and his petition for a divorce against his wife was granted.

The parties were married in Kells in November, 1933, and there were four children of the marriage.

MORE PLAYING FIELDS

"Already the Corporation has made a wide survey of the needs of children over the age of 14 for playing fields, and in the near future land is scheduled to be available for this purpose," said the Lord Mayor of Dublin, Alderman M. O'Sullivan, T.D., at the annual meeting of the Civics Institute of Ireland, held in the Country Shop, St. Stephen's Green, Dublin, yesterday.

It was pointed out by the President of the Institute, Mr. R. F. Browne, that only about 3,500 of the 142,000 children within the city boundaries have the opportunity to play in healthy conditions.

The Minister for Posts and Telegraphs, Mr. P. J. Little, commended the Institute on its work, and said that, however much the Government might spend on social services, the work of some such Institute was essential.

Garden Borders In Variety

By G. O. SHERRARD

IT is not till June that the herbaceous border comes into its full glory. In May there are Irises, Lupins, Aquilegias and Doronicums in flower it is true, but in June we find a more brilliant company, headed by the Delphinium, the acknowledged king of the border. This month, besides the Delphinium, there are the Oriental Poppy, Anchusa, Paeony, Lychnis Chalcedonica and L. Coronaria, Pyrethrum and many minor things, such as Veronicas, Nepeta Mussini, and geraniums. Here are vivid blues, scarlets, ruby purple, crimson and pink shades, unequalled for brilliance during any other month. The Delphinium has been vastly improved during the last 25 years by the firms who specialise in this flower, and there is no excuse for retaining the old, small-flowered varieties, with dense spikes, still often to be seen in gardens.

Special protection must be afforded newly-planted specimens, which are extremely palatable to slugs and snails, and sometimes fail to appear above ground for that reason. A circle of lime round each plant, with an occasional dressing with meta and bran, is necessary. If very large spikes are required, the shoots which push up in spring should be reduced in number, and those removed can be used as cuttings and rooted in a mixture of peat and sand in small pots in a frame. The Oriental Poppy can now be had in many shades besides the original scarlet. A packet of seed generally yields some good things, and can be sown now. Named varieties are propagated by root cuttings or by division of the plant after flowering.

Anchusas provide as rich a blue colour as the Delphinium, although their habit of growth is less graceful, and they need careful staking. Morning Glory is the best dark blue variety, and Opal the best pale blue. They are increased by root cuttings, about two inches in length, which are struck in peat or sand in a frame or even in the open ground.

Paeonies do best in a deep heavy loam, and when not exposed to full sun, they dislike being moved and relish generous feeding. The hybrid French varieties are excellent for cutting.

The old-fashioned Lychnis Coronaria once known as Agrostemma has the richest purple colour of any flower I know, with which the grey foliage forms an admirable contrast. It is a biennial, and must be raised from seed every year, but numerous self-sown seedlings are usually to be found near it. L. Chalcedonica, on the other hand, is a true perennial and is propagated by division. It provides a pure scarlet colour, which is most valuable. It needs careful staking, and suffers during a period of drought.

Pyrethrums are even more sought after by slugs than are Delphiniums. A great cut flower, they divide best soon after they have flowered.

OBITUARY

CANON HURLEY, P.P.

The death of the Very Rev. Canon Timothy Hurley, P.P., D.D., V.F., St. Patrick's Castlerea, Co. Roscommon, took place yesterday. He was 74 years of age, and was the author of many poems and books of a high standard, his latest publication being a history of the parish of Kilkeevin and a sonnet sequence on the Nativity. After pursuing a brilliant course at a diocesan seminary at Sligo, he went to the Irish College in Rome, where he was ordained in 1896.

DR. J. R. PURCELL

The death took place in Dublin yesterday of Dr. James Reginald Purcell, Medical Officer of the Killenaule Dispensary District, Thurles. He was educated in Queen's College, Cork, and in the Royal College of Surgeons, Edinburgh, where he obtained the degree of L.R.C.P. and S. He obtained the degree of L.R.F.P.S. in Glasgow in 1905.

MENTAL HOSPITAL ATTENDANTS

A shortage of Protestant attendants and nurses to accompany Protestant patients of Grangegorman and Portrane mental hospitals to religious Services was mentioned by the Dublin Assistant City Manager, Mr. T. C. O'Mahony, in his report at yesterday's meeting of the joint committee of the hospitals. He said that very few applications had been received from Protestants for these posts. Two Church of Ireland women attendants had been invited to attend for interview, but they had failed to respond. The Church of Ireland chaplains in Grangegorman and Portrane were aware of the difficulty in securing a Protestant staff, and the matter had been brought to the notice of their Archbishop.

The committee decided to ask the Department of Local Government and Public Health to give preferential treatment, as regards the maximum age limit, to members or ex-members of the Army, applying for appointment as attendants in the hospitals.

It was stated that plans for the extension of accommodation for tuberculosis patients in Grangegorman, estimated to cost over £7,000, had been submitted to the Department of Local Government and Public Health for approval.

D.D.T. BEING MADE IN IRELAND

D.D.T., the new insecticide, which averted a serious typhus outbreak in lice-infested Naples in 1943, is now being manufactured in this country. As all Allied output is reserved for use with their armed forces, Ireland is thus the first country in the world to have D.D.T. made available for general use. The insecticide, which is as formidable as its name—dichloro-diphenyl-trichloroethane—is deadly to lice, fleas, flies, mosquitos, moths and bedbugs. In the garden and on the farm it will kill the flea-beetle, carrot-fly, gooseberry saw-fly and the green-fly.

LORD ABBOT'S VISIT TO MOUNT ST. BENEDICT

The Lord Abbot of Downside, who visited Mount St. Benedict this week, told a deputation representing the people of North Wexford that he was unreservedly with them in their desire to see Mount St. Benedict School re-established.

Before leaving, the Lord Abbot consecrated a silver-gilt chalice, ornamented with precious stones, a presentation made to Dom Sweetman by the former students of the school.

Boyle's Pint Prices.—Seven of the 34 publicans in Boyle, Co. Roscommon, have reduced the price of the pint of porter, and of stout, to the former rates of 7d. and 10d., respectively.

Borealis mastered the 1944 Derby winner half-way up the hill, and then strode away gallantly.

ALTHOUGH there was no improvement in trading on the Dublin Stock Exchange yesterday, Irish securities continued steady. Interest in British Industrials was negligible.

Home Government Funds attracted the bulk of attention, and the tendency was harder, with the sole exception of 4 p.c. Exchequer Bonds. Bank of Ireland stock was still favoured, and jumped another point to 369.

Guinness units hardened to 146/9. There was some selling of Gt. Northern Rails, and the Ord. drooped to 26¼. The Pref. shaded off to 43.

HARLAND AND WOLFF PROFIT UP
Distillers' Dividend Raised

FROM OUR LONDON FINANCIAL CORRESPONDENT

INCREASED profit for the year to December 31 are announced by Harland and Wolff, the Belfast shipbuilding firm. Profits before depreciation were £1,365,018, against £1,235,110, while income from investments brought a further £15,935, against £15,706. A balance of profit on settlement of contract in previous years of £276,158 is brought in, against £380,062, so that total income is £1,657,111, against £1,630,878. Tax provision requires £715,580, while interest credited to trustees of staff fund receives £13,010, against a total for these two items of £709,654 previously. Depreciation again secures £400,000, provision towards excess costs of war-time capital expenditure, £200,000, and staff fund contribution, £100,000.

Since the previous accounts the capital has been re-organised. The previous "A" Ord. shares have been divided equally into 4½ per cent. Pref. and Ord., while the "B" Ord. has become the equity. After paying a half-year's dividend on the 4½ per cent. Pref., dividend on the Ord. is 7 per cent. for the year, against 6 per cent. paid on the "A" and "B" Ord. capital previously.

The carry-forward is increased from £94,157 to £135,315, largely due to the fact that only 6 months' dividend became payable on the Pref. The £1 Ord. stand around 17s.

DISTILLERS' RESULTS

Results for the year to May 15 last received this afternoon from the directors of the Distillers Company have been anxiously awaited for some time. Profits are now announced at £2,157,663, and the comparative figure is given at £2,086,501. Ord. stockholders benefit from the expansion in earnings. The final Ord. dividend is raised from 10 per cent. to 11¼ per cent., making, with the interim, 17½ per cent., while the cash bonus is maintained at 2½ per cent. Total distribution is, therefore, 20 per cent., against 18¾ per cent.

The directors are placing £69,582, against £47,156 to investment reserve, in addition to transferring £500,000, as before, to reserve fund. No contribution is, however, made this time to War Contingencies Fund, against £50,000 previously. After meeting dividends, the carry-forward is raised from £534,491 to £555,815.

The £1 Ord. units have been attracting investment attention for some while. Following the profit and dividend news, which came shortly before official business, the price of the Ord. was raised to 118s., showing a gain of 9d. on the day.

SEWING COTTON

The full report of the English Sewing Cotton Company, Ltd., confirms the preliminary statement of profits at £181,420, compared with £173,525 in the previous year. The dividend, as previously announced, is again made up to 5 p.c. Little variation is shown in the balance-sheet figures, the most striking change being a rise in the value of stocks from £791,249 to £925,553. The claim of the Inland Revenue to levy excess profits tax on the profits of the American Thread Company is still unsettled, and is the subject of appeal.

Mr. Leslie Shaw, the Chairman, points out that difficulties during the year have in no way diminished, and trade in sewing cottons, both for home and export, has been seriously affected by the continued shortage of labour and the control of supplies and materials of all kinds. He foresees considerable difficulty in maintaining an adequate labour force to cope with the hoped-for demands for the company's products in the immediate post-war years.

Hope for some relief from the heavy burden of taxation, now that the war in Europe is at an end, is expressed by Mr. Shaw, in particular in regard to double taxation, as a result of the recent convention between this country and the United States. The convention has still to be ratified.

COSSOR STATEMENT

An important announcement is made by Mr. T. A. Macauley, Chairman of A. C. Cossor, Ltd. He states that negotiations with United States interests, which involve important developments, have reached an advanced stage, but the date on which any formal announcement will be made is as yet unknown. The 5s. Ordinary shares of the company have been attracting widespread attention for some time.

British Export Trade May Disappoint

People who looked for an increase of 50 per cent. in Britain's export trade were doomed to disappointment, said Mr. J. O. M. Clark, Chairman of Messrs. J. and P. Coats, Ltd., at the company's annual meeting in Glasgow yesterday.

He declared that, if the company increased its export volume permanently by anything like 25 per cent. after the war, it would be a remarkable performance. When trading on a general scale became practicable, he said, the opportunity should not be lost to lower the barriers of trade, so that the demand for goods might be established on a permanent basis.

Mr. Clark said that at one of their factories, in a country "where the standard of living is, at least, as high as in this country," and where operatives, working shifts of 40 hours as compared with a 48-hour week in Britain, earned higher wages, the cost of the article was almost the same as in Britain.

He disclosed that the company's mills in Belgium, France and Germany were almost intact, but at the large mills at Lucca, in Italy, the damage was more serious, though not more than 10 per cent. of the plant had suffered.

British Railways Hold Firm

RENEWED firmness was displayed by most departments of the London Stock Markets yesterday, but election influences tended to keep business small. Gilt-edged benefited from a general desire to keep level, and Colonial Government stocks were firm. In the foreign market, German Potash Bonds further relapsed, but Japanese issues hardened. British Rails found increased support, and, on consideration of the good traffics, Argentine issues claimed a little more attention.

The feature of the Mining Department was the bidding for Blyvoors and Anglo-Americans. There was selective buying of Industrials, but Radio shares reflected profit-taking. Oil shares were better.

WALL STREET

NEW YORK, Thursday.—Yesterday's closing firmness was maintained at to-day's opening, and trading was active, with buying centred on Steels. Rails and Motors, while scattered pivotal stocks were neglected. Gains ranging to one point predominated towards mid-day.

Rails resumed their advance in the afternoon, accompanied by Steels, Motors, Liquors and scattered Utilities. The close was firm.

Sales, totalling 2,100,000 shares, comprised 960 issues, of which 525 advanced and 229 declined.—(Reuter.)

It has been decided to redeem at par on January 1st, 1946, the outstanding balance of Dublin Corporation 5 p.c. Redeemable Stock, 1946-76.

DUBLIN'S SEASIDES

In these days of feverish changes, while men's minds are preoccupied with questions of economic problems and potentialities at home and abroad, the people of Dublin well may find it refreshing to turn their thoughts to some of the bountiful gifts with which nature has endowed their city. As in other connections, there are the dangers that familiarity may breed contempt of things of abiding importance and that — in the hustle of modern city life—false perspectives may lead to hopelessly misleading valuations of civic assets and opportunities. Thus values and possibilities that lie hidden from the eye of local communities too often remain to be discovered, and given their proper value, by the tourist and visitor from other regions. While far-off fields are attractively green, those that lie close at hand tend to become drab and uninteresting. While the bathing beaches of Blackpool and the highlands of Scotland continue to attract their teeming thousands of visitors, the people of Dublin are all too prone to forget about that part of the world in which the mountains of Wicklow look down on the unspoiled bathing strands and wooded hinterlands that lie within an hour's journey from their city's crowded centre. The visitor is captivated by the morning and evening glories of Dublin Bay, but most of our own citizens are wont merely to take such dispensations of nature for granted, and to seek for rest and refreshment in more distant surroundings. The tourist discovers a surfeit of natural attractions, as they are illustrated and described in Tourist Association publications; yet, the vision of too many citizens is sadly confined to the nearby streets and the "ribboned" roads of suburban Dublin.

Happily, there are many signs that citizens of all classes now show a disposition to break down these traditional barriers against the enjoyment of nature's gifts, which lie in such profusion along Dublin's foreshores and in their surrounding rural areas. Driven outwards by the exorbitant costs of control building sites, and finding access to outer areas made easy by modern motor and bus transport, thousands of families already have found new homesteads in, or convenient to, the seaside areas that encircle Dublin Bay. When normal conditions of transport are restored, that outward movement will become more forceful and difficult to control. Seaside hamlets along North Dublin's foreshores, and in the foreshore and hillside districts of the South County, that showed increasing signs of life in pre-war days, soon will call for new sanitary, water and electricity services. Likewise, inside and adjacent to the administrative boundaries of the city, and of Dun Laoghaire, the spread of municipal and private housing schemes will demand considerable extensions of civic public services. Concurrently, it is to be hoped that effect will be given to the Corporation's approved plan for the development of self-contained "satellite" settlements in hillside and coastal areas. Not less important will be the provision of sites and buildings for holiday camps of the kind that was illustrated at last year's National Planning Exhibition, and even now is being developed in several British seaside and mountain districts. All these, and other, developments—if they are not to result in the spoliation of our naturally picturesque seaside and hillside areas—must be carried out in accordance with some unified plan, whose authors' guiding purpose will be to preserve all the natural beauties that surround Dublin's "horseshoe" Bay, and to ensure that narrow conceptions of utility, or those of private profit, will not be allowed to over-ride those of general amenity and well-ordered expansion.

Are such plans yet in sight? Is there any assurance that schemes being prepared by the three bodies who are responsible for the application of the Town and Regional Planning Acts to Dublin city and county are so designed and knit together as to ensure the fullest realisation of nature's endowments? Is there not rather some reason to fear that local interests and ambitions may be allowed to lead to patchwork and wasteful types of development? Is the Tourist Board, in its anxiety to attract visitors from abroad, to be regarded as an independent planning authority? Are the County Commissioner's plans for the development of Portmarnock and other northern seaside resorts to be given priority over the Corporation's plans for the long-promised Marine Lake and national sports centre in the adjoining grounds of St. Anne's estate? What, if anything, is being done about the proposal to construct a seaside road outside the railway track that prevents ready access to the sandy beaches and bathing grounds extending from Merrion Gates to Dun Laoghaire? Such questions are among many that must be answered before balanced plans for Dublin's seaside resorts begin to appear. All the schemes that we have mentioned, and many others, are—as we believe—good in themselves and highly desirable. The only open question is whether they are constituent elements in some considered and co-ordinated plan for the fullest possible realisation of the natural amenities and attractions of Dublin's seaside resorts. If such a plan has been made, or if it now is being actively prepared, we can see no reason why its nature and details ought to be regarded as an official secret.

Derby Day

To-morrow is Irish Derby Day. Hundreds of racing enthusiasts, in the absence of special trains, will put themselves to a great deal of inconvenience in order that they may witness the most important of the year's "classic" races at the Curragh. Some will cycle the thirty miles to racing headquarters; some will travel by one horse-drawn vehicle to Naas, and by another horse-drawn vehicle for the rest of the way; and some will crowd into the few buses that pass by the famous Co. Kildare plain. The scene at the Curragh never did, and never will, resemble that at Epsom Downs on the occasion of an English Derby. The English Derby is almost a national event; and even if the British Parliament, in modern times, never adjourned from Westminster to Epsom, Hansard reveals the fact that the late Horatio Bottomley, M.P., annually made a plea that it should do so. The atmosphere at the Curragh is altogether more restrained. There is none of the "fun of the fair" that one associates with Epsom Downs. There are no gypsies, no theatrically attired tipsters; there are very few refreshment booths, and the "three-card-trick men" ply their trade so inconspicuously that any who sought to "find the lady" would have almost as difficult a task in finding the gentlemen who manipulate that diffident female. Horse-racing in this country is much of a sport, and something of a pleasure, but, above all, it is a serious business. The casual patron of racing is rare. The men and women who will attend the Curragh to-morrow will be diligent students of racing and breeding, experts upon equine form, and as well versed in genealogical tables as an Ulster King-at-Arms. They would despise the advice of a common tipster, and find the frivolity of Epsom an unwarranted interference with the very important matter of racing. Yet, the Curragh has its own enjoyable atmosphere, an atmosphere that grows tense when the leading three-year-olds of the season are at the post; that gives way to excitement as the leaders join issue at "the distance," and bursts into noisy, if not wild, enthusiasm when the favourite pulls out in the concluding few yards to win by a short head.

Cruiskeen Lawn

By Myles na gCopaleen

FOLLOWING the official announcement, issued simultaneously last night from Dublin, that a date has finally, but secretly, been fixed for the long-awaited meeting of the "Big One," considerable activity has been reported from Washington, "Chung" King and the Crumlin, where well-obformed inservers believe that a first-class diplomatic démarche is in contemplation. In his press conference at the Yellow House this morning, Mr. na gCopaleen revealed that full agreement had now been reached as to the probable location of the meeting, but added that "it may not be possible to hold it on this globe." Pressed for a further explanation, Mr. na gCopaleen pointed out that the exigencies of post-war planning might mean that no suitable tite would be available by the time all plans for the meeting had been fully laid. Considerations of state made it imperative that the meeting should be held on land, and, if the dispensations of democratic civilisation, the development of arterial highways, housing schemes, holiday camps, social insurance, immortality with pay, etc., were to prevent, or in any way to threaten the proposed conference, then he (Mr. na gCopaleen) would have to reserve to himself the right to take all such steps as he might in his supreme and absolute dis-creation (stet) deem proper to safeguard the conference and ensure for it that aura of intellectual tranquillity without which the work of establishing adjust and during peace could never be satisfactorily contemplated. Mr. na gCopaleen added, amid laughter, that he would take such steps even if it meant walking all the way to the Evening Star (of which he is Managing Director). Apart from this difficulty (which he believes to be not in Sir Mount Abel) there is the more urgent consideration of time; unless he cancels all his engagements, Mr. na gCopaleen's parliamentary undersecretaries told an Irish Times 'Special' Constable this afternoon in Santry, it will not be possible to hold the meeting before July 13, 2207 (A.D). Unfortunately, Mr. na gCopaleen's appointments are of such a nature as not to permit of cancellation if the earth in its present form is still to be in existence by that 'time.' It has therefore been necessary to consider post . . . . . (sorry) anteponing this decisive conference to some date in the past, preferably in the more leisured past, and negotiations with the appropriate authorities have for some time been in progress with this end (sorry) with this beginning in view. Mr. na gCopaleen stressed that this proposal has not unnaturally entailed a considerable amount of genuine hard work for his staff, to him be paid tribute for their zeal and devotion to him and his family, afterwards bestowing on seven of his taoiseachs, uachtarans, etc., the Insignia of the Sovereign Grand Fleece of the Purple Hart with Palm Leaves and Diamonds; Swords and Scabbards of Honour were also distributed. Mr. na gCopaleen declined to make any further statement in the Mater (late last night) but the Stockholm Tidnungen reports a rumour emanating from a usually reliable source in Zürich that the conference is scheduled to take place in Clontarf, rather early in the eleventh century. Mr. B. Bureau, soi-disant head of the Eire Government, has offered to lend his pavilion for the occasion as he hopes to be on retreat at the time. Meanwhile political circles here are insistent in their demand that all the "Big One" should be fully and personally represented at the meeting. "Red Star," in particular, says, in an inspired editorial: "It is high time that this notorious enemy of the Russian National Socialist Republic who has been thrice convicted of diversionary activities, flagrant traffic violations, literary terrorism, virulent Trotskyism, together with the proven ownership of illegal radio transmitters, should appear before the Supreme Grand Praesidium of the Imperial Grand Court of Justice of the Allied Grand Peoples' Soviet where summary justice will be meted out to him, one by one."

UNIVERSITY NOTES

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT

THE three German sketches by William Witte, which were presented by the D.U. Modern Languages Society, were much appreciated by a large audience. The plays were competently produced by Mr. Robert Weil, and the acting was of a high standard, particularly in the farcical scenes. The "Mod. Lang." must be praised for its efforts in presenting these sketches, which deal amusingly with the Brains' Trust and other phenomena of war-time Britain.

The D.U. Elizabethan Society has been very active lately. It has taken over the work of the D.U. Social Service Society in looking after the tenement houses owned by College in Grenville street. Every Saturday afternoon some of its members visit Grenville street, and often take the children on excursions. Much valuable work is done by this group of women students, and the informal dance held last week in the Dixon Memorial Hall was in aid of their activities.

The D.U. Swimming Club has secured the Dixon Hall for a dance to-morrow night.

U.C.D.

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

THE activities of the tennis club have received little mention in these notes, an omission for which the elusiveness of the committee members is more than partly responsible. Both teams have enjoyed successful seasons, and the women, captained by Miss Alice Blayney, have become the first holders of the Gill Cup. A newcomer of considerable promise is Miss Ruth Sheehy, sister of Mr. David Sheehy, the recently-elected "Father" of the Law Society. The men's team was rather unfortunate in being without its captain, Mr. Ivar McG. Boden, for the all-important fixture with Lansdowne.

Mr. Frank Keenan has been elected captain of the rugby club, with Mr. Jack Maloney as his assistant.

At the present time examinations, in particular the Final Medical, are occupying the minds of most students. Lectures have ceased and, except for the arrival and departure of students from Convocation Hall, the corridors are deserted. During the vacation the cricket and boat clubs will carry on with depleted numbers, and Mr. Brian Rowan will lead the College L.D.F. on the summer camp.

WEALTH IN WATER

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—Your leading article in Monday's issue is a fairly exact representation of the present position, particularly in regard to inland fisheries. In your article you describe the fisheries as next in importance to agriculture. While agriculture, however, has, in the main, to rely on one market for its export prosperity, fisheries, either as a tourist industry or as a physical export, owing to their relative scarcity, may be internationally marketed. Dehydration and other scientific advances must shortly bring stringent competition to our agricultural exports. Angling, on the other hand, lends itself to no such manipulation. Long term planning can, therefore, be confidently engaged in, since those desirous of engaging in the cult must continue to follow the trail. The importance of the fisheries, therefore, in helping to secure economic independence is an aspect that in any enlightened State would not be ignored.

Switzerland prior to the war profited to the extent of 24 millions per year from her sports facilities. The Swiss industry must, in the main, depend on youth for its prosperity. The fisheries, on the other hand, apart from extending for a considerably longer season, cater for both young and old. There can be little doubt that a fully developed fishery would be at least as profitable as the Swiss attractions.

Far from being developed, however, the fisheries are going from bad to worse. In so far as salmon are concerned, the enhanced price obtainable in war-time was a price on the salmon's head, and greatly increased the number of hunters. It may not be generally understood that any citizen so inclined can, under present fishery laws, take out a net licence and net to his heart's content with no liability other than the price of the licence—a wonderful industry where anyone who cares may reap, and where no one is charged to sow.

When the Free State came into being in 1921 the total number of net licences issued in Ireland, North and South, totalled 1,088. In the year 1928 in the Free State alone the licences had increased to 1,833. I have not the figures for the present war, but, judging from the doleful reports of bad catches this season and last, netting in the early war years must have been conducted assiduously, and succeeded in further decimating the attenuated spawning stock.

Generations of uncontrolled slaughter has helped the salmon a long way on the road to extinction. A continuance of present high prices, with no provision for the elementary principle of safeguarding the capital as represented by spawning fish, will soon place the salmon in the distinguished company of the American bison, with our rivers turned into sanctuaries, if the increasing uncontrolled industrial pollution still enables them to sustain life.—Yours, etc.,

"CONSERVATOR."

AN IRISHMAN'S DIARY

Belfast

SOMEHOW, in spite of the uniforms still to be seen in the streets, Belfast has become a city of peace. Yesterday it was all decked out with flags—I suppose for the visit of the Princess Royal, not for my own—and wore quite a gala air. Huge coloured portraits of Mr. Churchill and General Montgomery, twenty feet long, decorate the front of one of the cinemas; and outside the City Hall, with an ear-splitting din, a battery of pneumatic drills is gnawing away the tops of the air-raid shelters, like so many mechanical mice at the icing of a wedding cake.

Just outside Belfast my train passed a little group of work-grimed men standing by the line. They stared at it as it passed, with the close interest of the very bored. They were wearing rough shirts and greenish-grey trousers, and something about the cut of their caps struck me as unfamiliar and yet familiar. Somebody said: "Look—German prisoners!"

All the illustrated papers came to life for me in that one moment.

The Reason

On this matter of air-raid shelters—with 701 of them to pick from in Dublin, why did the Corporation decide to start its demolition programme on a couple in Marlborough street? If you lost a bicycle within recent months, you might be able to suggest an answer. The Civic Guards discovered that air-raid shelters, particularly in the Marlborough street area, were being used by the cycle thieves to park the bikes. Several were recovered by Guards visiting the shelters while on patrol.

Some of the bikes were complete, another was all right except that somebody had taken a fancy to the handlebar basket, and another had been stripped to the frame. This makes just one more good reason for being glad to see the last of the shelters.

Sir William Hickie

I was interested to see that a complimentary dinner on the occasion of his eightieth birthday, was given by the Area Council of the British Legion for Major-General Sir William Hickie, K.C.B., Commander of the 16th Irish Division, President of the Southern Ireland Area of the British Legion. The dinner was held in the Shelbourne, I understand, and Sir John Maffey was in the chair.

From all I hear, it was a most enjoyable evening. Sir John Maffey paid a warm tribute to Major-General Sir William Hickie, and Mr. A. P. Connolly, Chairman of the Southern Ireland Council, expressed pleasure at the presence of so many leading figures in the British Legion, and regret at the unavoidable absence of others.

Incidentally, he read a most amusing letter from the MacGillycuddy of the Reeks, who, explaining that he would be in England at the time of the dinner, and, therefore, could not be present, touched briefly on some of the topics he might have discussed in an after-dinner speech. The letter concluded: "And I might have told the tale of the General, the two soldiers, the lady and the two tins of jam."

War Memorial

Mr. Connolly then mentioned an interesting matter. Pointing out that Sir William Hickie's memory would be held in honour in connection with the raising of three memorials to the memory of the Irish soldiers who had fallen on the battlefields of France, Belgium and Serbia, he said that too much praise could not be given to him for the success of the distinctive Irish National War Memorial at Islandbridge.

That magnificent memorial had not yet been officially opened or dedicated. "Perhaps," he said, "at the end of this war, when hostilities everywhere have ceased, the question of the dedication of this memorial will come to be considered, and the point will, no doubt, be raised, whether it would not be appropriate that it should be regarded as a memorial to men of the two Great Wars who have fallen in the cause of freedom and liberty."

Sir William replied by giving a brief account of his extremely eventful military career, and the other speakers included Captain J. L. Bennet, O.B.E., Chairman of North Ireland Area, Lieutenant-General James Hartigan, K.C.B., C.M.G., D.S.O., and Major-General Sir G. McK Franks, K.C.B. I am assured that a good time was had by all.

Roses, Roses—

You may have been surprised this morning to find geraniums and other gay summer flowers growing out of the tram standards along Westmoreland street and College Green. Or if you are still in your tram or bus the surprise awaits you.

From seven o'clock until dark last night, and again from before five o'clock this morning, Corporation men were busy preparing the baskets of blooms to decorate the route which the President-Elect will take on his way from the Castle to the Phœnix Park next Monday.

Mr. Michael Keegan, chief superintendent of public parks, who is in charge of the arrangements, said that in order to get the work completed in time it is necessary to work continuously from dawn until dark. Getting sufficient moss was a problem. For several days the men have been combing the Wicklow woods and mountains, and finally they succeeded in collecting about two tons.

The bouquets will be allowed to remain after they have served their official purpose, to give some colour to the Dublin street scene. This means that the flowers will have to be watered every second day—so look out!

Nothing Serious

A friend of mine spent a hectic afternoon recently interviewing maids. There were eleven of them, one after another. One she couldn't understand at all; one was over six feet tall and frightened her; another seemed satisfactory enough until my friend rang up her last employer, and discovered, with fascinated horror, that she had "moods" that "couldn't be mentioned on the telephone."

The last to arrive was a cheerful-looking girl. She had with her a young man, whom she parked outside the gate when she came into the house. My friend, not wanting to get a girl who might leave her to be married in a month or two, asked her tactfully: "Is that your fiance, by any chance?"

"What, him?" hooted the girl "Ah, he's only me pastime—me regular fella's in England!"

PRO-QUIDNUNC.

LONDON LETTER

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON, THURSDAY NIGHT.

HOW the establishment of foreign copyright in the U.S.A. made an enormous change in the economic possibilities of successful authorship is stressed by Mr. George Bernard Shaw in a review of his sixty years in business as an author, in the current journal of the Society of Authors, Playwrights and Composers.

"Dickens was dismayed by the little he received for the huge success of his 'Christmas Carol,' and had to work himself to death as a public reader to provide for his large family," comments "G.B.S." "He had even to drink himself to death, for his last American tour, which killed him, was achieved only by a diet of fiery cocktails. Were he alive to-day he could, by holding up his finger, get £30,000 for the film rights of any of his stories, in addition to his literary royalties.

"Even the unorganised literary hacks, who still form the bulk of our sweated profession, and who 70 years ago toiled in the reading room of the British Museum for eighteen pence an hour can at least dream of selling a story to Hollywood for the price of a much-needed renewal of their wardrobes."

Mr. Shaw adds that he finished his first book—a novel—76 years ago, but every publisher in the English-speaking earth turned it down, and it did not see the light until fifty years later, when publishers would print anything with the name "G.B.S." on it.

"Lucky Leinster"

The story of the war-time service as a hospital carrier of the Leinster, formerly on the Dublin-Liverpool route, was told by Mr. William R. Stuart, a member of her crew, in last week's Times Pictorial.

Miss May E. Johnston and Miss Geraldine Edge, both ex-prisoners of war, who served on board the Leinster for nine hectic months, have to-day published a very interesting account of their experiences under the title "The Ships of Youth."

They describe how the Leinster and the two Rosslare-Fishguard steamers, the hospital ships St. David and St. Andrew, cruising fully lighted off Anzio one night, were attacked nine times by dive bombers, and, after the Leinster was set on fire by a 500 lb. bomb, the planes drew off for some time, but returned to sink the St. David in gruelling attacks on all the vessels.

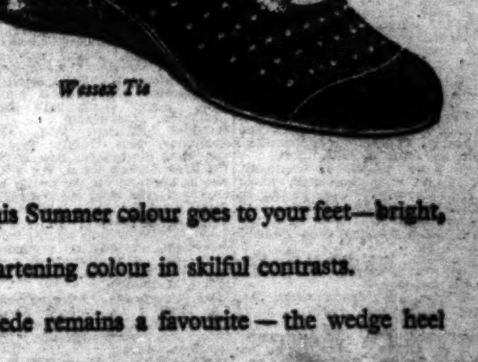

Over fifty of the ship's complement died, more than 100 being rescued by the Leinster.

KILLED IN ITALY

Captain Ian Frederick Edward Blacker, of the Rifle Brigade, was killed in action in Italy a year ago to-day. In an isolated position, with only about 20 men, he had held the Germans at bay for four hours. This gave his battalion time to dig in. He was last seen standing in a half-dug trench at the top of the hill he had captured, refusing to surrender, and shooting with a rifle at the Germans at a range of about ten yards. His Colonel wrote: "No man ever led his men more courageously, or died more gallantly."

Captain Blacker was the second son of Lieut.-Colonel F. St. J. Blacker, D.S.O., of Castle Martin, Co. Kildare. He had been educated at Harrow and Trinity College, Cambridge.

"THERE'S SOMETHING IN RENNIES"

Says this Sufferer from Indigestion and Palpitation

"There is evidently something in Rennies that no other tablets have," says this woman, and how right she is. Read her letter:—

"My age is 50, and I have always been pretty fit, except for palpitation caused through indigestion. I have suffered from it for over twenty years. I was afraid to eat, and had only dry biscuits and very small dinners. I got very thin and nervy, and was very worried about my health. A neighbour asked me to try Rennies, and to my surprise they suited me. Now I am very thankful to say I am much stronger and able to carry on. There is evidently something in Rennies that no other tablets have, because I tried everything. Now I can eat almost anything, but I make sure I always have a good supply of Rennies."—(Mrs.) A.M.W.

As the analysis printed on each packet shows, Rennies are a combination of 15 separate ingredients, specially blended to bring speedy and complete relief from indigestion, excess acidity, and other stomach troubles.

All Chemists sell Rennies, 7d. & 2/- box.

WONDERFUL RESULTS IN 400 CASES OF SKIN DISEASE

writes hard-working Hospital Sister

"I wish to report I still find Valderma Balm most beneficial in nearly every kind of skin eruption. I have introduced it to 168 working class homes and myself bought 58 pots. I know 136 mothers who are never without it. I have treated over 400 cases of serious skin diseases, dozens of grazes, cuts and burns, and every one has improved with Valderma Balm dressings. In any cases I have come up against where serious irritation is concerned I advise nightly treatment with Valderma Balm. It has proved a boon to many a hard-working mother." N.E. (Sister).

GREAT ADVANCE OF SCIENCE

Germs — of several different kinds — are the cause of most skin troubles. That is why you need the DOUBLE-ANTISEPTIC action of Valderma to defeat their attack. Each of Valderma's two antiseptics is fatal to certain kinds of bacteria; the two together give you a sure shield against almost all! Prescribed by Skin Specialists; Laboratory and Hospital tested. Valderma makes short work of Dermatitis, Eczema, Boils, Rashes, Pimples, etc. They yield like magic to its soothing two-in-one healing action (ten times more deadly to germs than Carbolic Ointment). The fact that Valderma is an oil-in-water emulsion is your guarantee that poisonous matter can escape without fear of re-infection. Bland, agreeable, white, creamy yet non-greasy, cannot stain. Heals many skin troubles in a few days. 2/- a jar.

DONT MISTREAT YOUR FEET!

When your feet are swollen and tender, they need kind treatment. Soak them in a soothing Radox footbath. Then pain and swelling will vanish and leave your feet "feeling like new." From all chemists, price 1/6 and 2/6 a packet.
